

The new Roxbylink Community Library officially opened on 19 September 2014. The library was purpose built to link all cultural and leisure centre buildings to create an integrated facility. With a bright colourful interior, modern decor and lots of room to house new books, other resources and even art work the library link has been transformational as the facility comes of age as the ultimate community connection. Centrally located within the precinct, the now linked building is the beating heart of a vibrant community hub creating seamless connections to sport, recreation, food, arts and culture. Whether it's quiet time to read the newspaper or a magazine, have a coffee, chat, watch a movie, gain some fitness or participating in a range of activities on offer the Cultural and Leisure Precinct offers something for everyone, with the library as a key integrating element.
